

Penehuro F Lefale, Director

has a postgraduate degree in International Environmental Legal Studies and Bachelor of Science (Physics & Mathematics) degree. In his early career, he worked with a team to develop the language for the Kyoto Protocol and worked with negotiating teams during the UNFCCC Conference of Parties meetings. In his professional career, he was the Climate Coordinator for the Secretariat of the Pacific Regional Environment Programme (SPREP), a Pacific Climate Analyst with New Zealand's National Institute for Water and Atmospheric Research (NIWA), Scientific Officer of the World Climate Program in the World Meteorological Organization (WMO), and International Affairs Office Manager in the International Affairs Office of the Meteorological Service of New Zealand, Ltd. Serving as the lead author for the Chapter on Small Islands for Working Group II of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC), in 2007, he earned a Nobel Peace Prize with his climate colleagues. Areas of research interest include: indigenous knowledge systems and climate science, climate interventions, and weather and climate extremes in the Pacific Islands Region.